MISSES WALL STREET TARGETS IN Q2 Tesla profit margin worst in five years

HYUNJOO JIN
& AKASH SRIRAM
July 24

TESLA HAS REPORTED its lowest profit margin in more than five years and missed Wall Street earnings targets in the second quarter, as the electric vehicle maker cut prices to revive demand while it increased spending on AI projects.

The company said it was on track to produce new vehicles, including more affordable models, in the first half of 2025, although the models will result in achieving less cost reduction than previously expected. Shares fell 8% in after-hours trade.

"Perhaps more than ever in the company's recent history, Tesla's investors need results; those will have to come fast — both for the humanoid robot and for the Robotaxi," said Thomas Monito, senior analyst at Investing.com.

Q2 was tumultuous, with CEO Elon Musk shelving development of an all-new cheaper car in favour of less ambitious lower-cost models and working on creating self-driving taxis, helping to boost

Should Tesla invest $5 billion in xAI? Musk launches poll

TESLA CEO ELON Musk has launched a poll asking users on social media platform X whether the electric carmaker should invest $5 billion in his artificial intelligence (AI) startup xAI — with early votes showing most in favour of the move. —REUTERS

Alphabet beats Q2 revenue & profit estimates on strong ads

ADITYA SONI
& KHUSHI SINGH
July 24

ALPHABET FELL MORE than 3% on Wednesday on fears that its rising investments in AI infra would squeeze margins and YouTube was facing tough competition for ad dollars.

The Google parent's capital expenditure rose more than expected in the second quarter to $13.2 billion as it invests heavily in infra needed to support generative AI services, as well as compete with Microsoft.

While Alphabet has been cutting costs through layoffs to protect profitability, several analysts said that seasonally higher hiring of fresh graduates and the earlier-than-usual Pixel launch will weigh on its margins in Q3.

Its YouTube video-streaming service is also grappling with tough year-on-year comparisons and competition in the market for online ad videos from the likes of Amazon. YouTube ad sales grew 13% in the second quarter, compared with an increase of nearly 21% in Q1. "Management sounded quite conservative about the outlook for H2 of the year," Bernstein analysts said. "Perhaps this is Google's way of setting an easy bar for the new CFO to come in against the next quarter. Or perhaps there's some truth to the conservatism and we are entering an uncomfortable period for the digital advertising names with decelerating growth and rising costs."

Shares of other digital advertising firms such as Meta, Snap and Pinterest were down between 3.2%–4% as growth slowed at Alphabet's core Search business despite beatng estimates. —REUTERS

LVMH shares fall after missing Q2 estimates

SHARES IN LVMH fell as much as 6.5% in early Wednesday trade and were on track for their biggest one-day drop since October 2023 after Q2 sales growth at the French luxury goods giant missed analysts' consensus estimate. Its quarterly sales rose 1% y-o-y to $22.76 billion, under-shooting the 21.6 billion expected on average by analysts. —REUTERS

Visa revenue miss prompts caution

VISA'S UNDERWELMING Q3 revenue prompted a number of brokerages to cut their price targets on the firm's stock, stoking concerns about slowing growth in customer spending and casting a shadow on the US payments industry. The results underscore the challenges the industry is facing after several quarters of growth. —REUTERS

CrowdStrike's tests failed to flag bug behind epic crash

KATRINA MANSON,

& MICHAEL HENNESSEY
July 24

CROWDSTRIKE HOLDINGS, THE cybersecurity company at the center of massive global IT outages, said that a bug in a quality-assurance tool the company uses to check for updates for mistakes allowed flawed data to go out to customers, causing last week's meltdown.

On Friday, the company pushed through an update for Windows machines via a rapid-response mechanism, meant to respond quickly to changing threats. That update contained a critical flaw. CrowdStrike's "content validator," which is supposed to test for errors before they go out, malfunctioned and let the bug pass through, the firm said in an incident report published on Wednesday.

That undetected error crashed Windows systems and kicked off one of the most spectacular rolling IT failures in history. The US company is trying to piece together the series of events that led to crashed Microsoft Windows computer systems around the world, taking down airline, banking and stock exchange operations from Australia and Japan to the UK.

Microsoft and CrowdStrike rolled out fixes last week, and many systems have been restored. But for several hours, bankers in Hong Kong, doctors in the UK and emergency responders in New Hampshire found themselves locked out of programs critical to keeping their operations afloat. More than 8.5 million Windows users were affected, according to Microsoft.

CrowdStrike said it's working to improve Rapid Response Content testing in the future. A new check "is in process" in order to fix the faulty content validator. The company also said it would give customers greater control over how these updates are delivered onto their systems. —BLOOMBERG

18 dead in Nepal plane crash

A SMALL PASSENGER plane belonging to Nepal's Saurya Airlines crashed and caught fire while taking off from the capital Kathmandu on Wednesday, killing 18 people on board and leaving one survivor, the captain, officials said.

"Only the captain was rescued alive and is receiving treatment at a hospital," said Tej Bahadur Poudyal, spokesman for Kathmandu's Tribhuvan International Airport. The 50-seater plane, carrying two crew members and 17 technicians, was heading for regular maintenance to Nepal's new Pokhara airport, which is equipped with aircraft maintenance hangars, the officials said. 18 of those on board the CRJ-200 aircraft were Nepali citizens, with one engineer from Yemen, Saurya said.

"Shortly after takeoff... the aircraft veered off to the right and crashed on the east side of the runway," the Civil Aviation Authority of Nepal said in a statement. —REUTERS
